USGA and Corplex Begin a New Relationship

The USGA and Corplex begin working together this week at the 2009 US Open Golf Tournament. The USGA awarded Corplex the remote facilities contract for the 2009 US Men's Open at Bethpage and the 2010 US Men's Open at Pebble Beach for its SKY Sports, TV ASAHI and WORLD International TV feeds. Corplex will also be responsible for broadcasting the TV ASAHI feed at the 2009 US Women's Open in Bethlehem, PA.

The relationship between Corplex and the USGA has grown from an old relationship between Kristin Xippolitos, Manager of Broadcasting for the USGA and Joe Scionti, VP of Sales for Corplex. Both Kristin and Joe have worked together on every US Men's Open since 1993. "We are very pleased to be working with the USGA this year and look forward to a long relationship together," explains Scionti. "Our smaller company size enables us to be extremely focused on this client which makes Corplex an excellent fit for the USGA."

This new relationship has a very sound foundation and is a major step in Corplex's growth in the remote TV facilities business. Corplex's recent acquisition of the entire National Mobile Television field shop infrastructure will also help position them for future growth including larger television compound work.

Corplex is a leading provider of remote production broadcast facilities to the major television networks. The company is privately held by partners Carter Ruehrdanz, Scott West, Dave Greany, Robert Danko, and Joe Scionti. Corplex is headquartered in Lake Bluff, IL, a suburb of Chicago.
